Gender-based Violence capacity building for health care and education professionals in South Africa

Interpersonal and especially gender related violence is a major obstacle to the South African Governments attempts to promote economic development and poverty alleviation. South Africa is acknowledged as being a very violent society with 45 out of every 100 000 South Africans dying a violent death annually (compared with 1/100 000 in the UK and 9/100 000 in the USA). Violence undermines national development efforts by fuelling the brain drain of skilled South Africans who cite fear of violence as the number one reason for emigration, frightens off international developers, negatively impacts on South Africa as a tourist destination and causes immeasurable personal suffering and has created an atmosphere where the average South African, irrespective of race, culture or socio economic situation feels unsafe in their own community.

The rationale for this project is the belief that the certain professional groupings such as teachers and medical practitioners are well placed to identify victims of violence. By identifying women subjected to violence they can help break the often long term, systematic abuse. The health sector and health professionals specifically can, and should, act as catalysts for increasing awareness and action to address this culture of violence.

The Project objectives are:

- To development of a series of training programmes tailored to the working environment of health care and educational professionals that will enable them to recognise and respond to victims of violence
- To training 3750 health care and educational professionals on violence related subjects such as recognising and dealing with gender based violence. This will include training community service doctors

(newly qualified doctors who have to work in government hospitals for 2 years after qualifying) on how to collect forensic evidence in violence injury and especially rape cases utilizing standardized guidelines and evidence collection kits. Training will also be extended to teachers aiming at prevention of violence.

- To develop a service directory that will list all government and civil society resources that are available in each province that will be used by participants of the training programme to identify organizations that victims of violence can be referred to for support
- To create opportunities for advocacy on violence.

The project will closely collaborate with Provincial Government where doctors and teachers are to be trained. Provinces will help identify geographical areas for priority training and provide permission for staff employed by them to attend such training. It is also anticipated that as with other past training partnerships with Government that resources will be provided to cover travel and accommodation costs for Government staff attending the training should this be required. The project also hopes to, by stimulating activities around health and violence; create interest at National Government level in the WHO Resolution that South Africa drafted and successfully guided to adoption in 1996 that declared violence a public health priority (WHA 49.25 adopted 25 May 1996).

Yours sincerely

Ria Schoeman
